Dear First Databank,

I am writing to voice my concern about First Databank's proposal to code all prescription prenatal vitamins into a class historically associated with over-the-counter products. This could decrease women's access to and choice about their prenatal vitamins – products that are universally regarded as a crucial component to prenatal care.

We choose prescription reimbursement plans based on their coverage options. I want to make sure my insurance company reimburses the prenatal vitamins doctors prescribe. I am asking that you reconsider your proposal, and protect women's access to prescription prenatal vitamins.

Sincerely,
